

WORDS OF CAUTION

Visitors who have difficulties or questions about the DHR's research policies may always request staff assistance. If files are left out of order or mishandled, a researcher's open file privileges will be revoked. The DHR is now digitizing its inventory information; in the future, fewer paper files will need to be handled.

Many of New Hampshire's historical, architectural and archaeological resources are not represented in the DHR's files. The state's landscape and environment change constantly, and a great deal of survey and inventory remains to be done. The absence of information at the DHR for a specific project area does not indicate that resources do not exist there. Fieldwork and research are needed to make an accurate judgement.

Information in the DHR's files may be decades old. Consultants are responsible for verifying a property's current appearance, integrity and significance.

New and/or updated survey information is regularly added to the DHR's files, typically at a rate of 1,000 properties a year. Repeated file reviews may be needed for long-term projects.

Not all properties in the DHR's files are historically significant. Surveyed properties are usually more than fifty years old, but may lack integrity or significance, or may have changed with time.

Due to these limitations, data from the DHR's files cannot be reliably redistributed. The DHR encourages researchers to gather information only for specific, timely purposes. The DHR does not recommend or approve the use of information gathered or reproduced in any other manner.

NH Division of Historical Resources
19 Pillsbury Street, 2nd Floor
Concord NH 03301-3570

Phone (603) 271-3483
Fax (603) 271-3433
TDD Access: Relay NH 1-800-735-2964
preservation@dcr.nh.gov
www.nh.gov/nhdhr

Cover photo: Poore Farm Museum, summer 2005, Stewartstown,
New Hampshire.

Inside photo: Paleoindian site, SCRAP Fieldschool 2006,
Colebrook, New Hampshire

April 2008

A Researcher's Guide to Using Records at the NH Division of Historical Resources

STATE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE
NH DEPARTMENT OF CULTURAL RESOURCES
19 PILLSBURY STREET
CONCORD NH 03301

The New Hampshire Division of Historical Resources is the state's historic preservation office (SHPO). New Hampshire's historical, archaeological, architectural and cultural resources are among the state's most important environmental assets. Historic preservation promotes the use, understanding and conservation of these resources.

FILE ACCESS AND AVAILABILITY

The town research files and the archaeological site files at the Division of Historical Resources (DHR) are available to the researching public by appointment only, on Monday through Friday, from 8 AM to 4 PM. Researchers must make an appointment prior to arrival by calling (603) 271-6568. Access and staff assistance are not available without an appointment.

Researchers with specific topic inquiries are encouraged to discuss their projects with staff in advance. With notice, staff can often point to lesser known sources of historical data, such as historic context files or town histories.

All visitors should first check in at the reception area and then sign in with the Records Coordinator.

Materials in the town research files are public records and available to all researchers. Archaeological records are accessible only to qualified archaeologists.

AVAILABLE MATERIALS

Town Research Files: cultural resource inventories, National and New Hampshire State Register nominations and miscellaneous property information.

Files are arranged alphabetically by town, beginning with cultural resource inventory files, followed by named properties, including Register nominations and miscellaneous property information. The files are color coded: orange for inventory files, magenta for New Hampshire State Register nominations, blue/manila for National Register nominations, and manila for miscellaneous properties.

Orange inventory files are further subdivided, beginning with town-wide area forms, project and historic district area forms, and then individual property forms, arranged by street address.

Maintaining the organization and condition of the town research files is critically important for other researchers, staff and the resources they represent. Many files are old and contain original documents, representing the only copy of the information available.

Archaeological Records: site forms, site maps and project reports.

DHR's archaeological records are accessible with staff assistance to consulting archaeologists who meet professional qualifications specified under 36 CFR 61, or to archaeologists working under the supervision of a qualified individual. Access to the files is for specific cultural resources projects; wholesale collection of data is not permitted. Archaeological site location information is reserved from accessibility under state law and the Freedom of Information Act. The DHR limits access to these files in order to protect resources and prevent unauthorized excavations.

To protect original records, staff assistance is required to remove and re-file archaeological site forms and location maps. The DHR has digitized site form information; selected queries of this information are available through the Cultural Resources Records Coordinator. Researchers are encouraged to discuss their areas of interest prior to arrival.

OTHER CONSIDERATIONS

The DHR office is accessible to all users via the elevator entrance from the parking lot. Parking is free. Photocopying is available for a fee, unless the fragile condition of a document prevents copying.

Visitors are expected to use common library etiquette: no food or drink in the file area, pencils only, use one file at a time, mark file locations with an out card, and handle documents with care to avoid tearing or bending.